

Brendan Roberts

Brendan Roberts has had extensive experience working in both the tourism sector (Chief Concierge for luxury hotels), and also in the IT industry, having been a Project Director for Enterprise system integration and bespoke software implementation projects. This is where he learned the importance of the intersection between technology and third party relationships and how they're critical to business success. This lead him to become Global Head Business Development at TourRadar as it allowed him to understand the philosophy behind the business model and the systems that support it. Brendan has lived in the UK, Ireland and Canada while working in the hotel, finance and IT industries. In his spare time, you can find Brendan anywhere in the outdoors, usually camping or mountain biking.
